- ## An update on the recently announced PHP vulnerabilities

  On October 20, 2026 the PHP team announced the discovery of two critical vulnerabilities. Booked runs on PHP, meaning the infrastructure that Booked runs on was vulnerable. Due to the exploit path, the Booked application is not affected by either of these vulnerabilities and does not require any updates. Booked Cloud Customers Within hours of...

- ## New Features in Booked 4.0

  Booked 4.0 is here and full of some exciting new features. We'll cover the biggest ones in this post. Event Templates For 20 years, Booked had a single way to reserve resources - the reservation form. Booked now supports a workflow-driven reservation process. This simple flow guides users through picking a date, an available time,...

- ## New in Booked 3.8 – Reservation Notification Rules

  We're excited about the Booked 3.8 release. Among the list of new features is a powerful and flexible reservation notification rule system. A longstanding feature request was to be able to send emails to arbitrary people for specific reservation activity, and that's precisely what this new feature enables. A custom set of rules can be...
